About our survey:

Recovery from the global financial crisis of 2008-09 led to reasonable growth in recent years, which was disrupted by fallout from the coronavirus pandemic in the first half of 2020. OECD analysts predict the overall impact of this health crisis is likely to lead to the worst recession in the last 100 years, excluding the World War periods. The lockdowns and travel restrictions across the globe have resulted in an abrupt drop in business activity.

The KPMG's report is an analysis of the findings of our survey of the leading banks active in the participating countries.

The 2020 Barometer includes input from over 60 banks, collected primarily via in-depth interviews and online questionnaires.
